These products inherently lack uniformity and are subject to variation in aesthetics, color, shade, finish, hardness, strength. Natural stone may be characterized by dry seams, pits, fossils. In polished and honed stones, these areas are often filled at the factory. In rustic or tumbled stones as well as with some honed limestones, these are often filled with grout during installation. In these instances, it may be necessary to refill these voids as part of a normal maintenance procedure. We recommend the use of a sealer for all natural stone applications. Any samples submitted are with the understanding that these qualities are inherent in the nature of the produce are not to be considered latent defects.
